

Power's Out - What About Payroll?

In the wake of last week's "Super Storm," it is natural to wonder what might happen in the event a disaster were to strike here in Central Indiana. AccuPay understands that our clients depend on us to provide timely, accurate payrolls to their employees - regardless of whether a storm hits or a server breaks down. Below are some of the extra steps we have taken to ensure that AccuPay will be "business as usual" when the unexpected happens.

1. AccuPay has a commercial generator capable of running our facility in the event of a power outage. This generator is tied directly into our building's power grid to ensure immediate recovery.
2. AccuPay has two back-up servers - one onsite and one offsite to ensure continuous workflow should our primary server become unavailable. These additional servers are set to back up regularly throughout the day so that minimal data is lost if the primary server goes down. The offsite server will become a backup processing center in the event that our building becomes inaccessible.
3. AccuPay has acquired a second, "back-up" Internet connection that will immediately take over should our primary connection go down.
4. AccuPay's phone, email, and online payroll systems are accessible offsite in order to stay in constant communication with clients.
5. Perhaps one of the best defenses for a disaster is having certified payroll experts on staff who can correctly calculate your payroll without a computer!
